On behalf of LAWASIA, I extend a warm invitation to lawyers, government and business interests from around the region to attend the forthcoming LAWASIA seminar - IT Law, Terrorism & Crimes: Asia Pacific Perspective, to be held very appropriately in the Indian city of Hyderabad.

The currency of the material to be discussed in the uncertainty of today's political, economic and legal landscape is clear to us all. I commend our colleagues at the Bar Association of India and the Indian Society for Criminal Justice for their foresight in putting together a discussion program that will examine these vital issues for our times.

I especially encourage LAWASIA members and others from around the region to consider the significance that an Asia Pacific perspective brings to any analysis of this material. As always, LAWASIA is proud to play a leading role in delivering not only a range of stimulating seminar papers but also the networking opportunities that are invaluable in building the inevitably multi-jurisdictional approach required by today's world.

LAWASIA is proud to be involved in this initiative and I look forward to welcoming all participants to the seminar and to Hyderabad.

Glenn Ferguson, President, LAWASIA
