

Firdaus Husni

Firdaus is an independent human rights law researcher and trainer. Formerly the Chief Human Rights Strategist/Chief Executive Officer of the Malaysian Centre for Constitutionalism and Human Rights (MCCHR), she now sits on its Board of Directors. She was previously a litigation lawyer and a member of the Malaysian Bar Council, chairing the Constitutional Law Committee and co-chairing the Human Rights Committee, among others. She has worked on, presented and conducted trainings on a number of issues concerning constitutionalism, democracy, rule of law, and human rights in Malaysia. She has guest lectured at the Faculty of Law and Asia-Europe Institute, University of Malaya, Malaysia.

Firdaus holds a Bachelor of Laws (Hons) degree from the University of Malaya, Malaysia, and a Master of Laws from SOAS University of London in the United Kingdom through the Chevening Award by the UK Government focusing on human rights law . As Expert Counsellor on Human Rights Advocacy & Training on the Human Rights Committee of LAWASIA, she hopes to contribute to the conversations at LAWASIA and, through the excellent networking opportunities it presented, learn some best practices in the way we seek to promote, protect, and defend human rights.
